

Clearly, mobile phone user preferences have changed dramatically, and mobile service providers are recognizing the shift. These trends notwithstanding, our strong preference to use mobile and wireless devices all the time, indoors or out, at home or work, is challenging legacy cellular networks.

